

Jonathan is a physicist with over a decade of experience in condensed matter and quantum physics, with a particular focus on spin qubits. His expertise lies in experimental techniques such as low-temperature and RF measurements, quantum control systems, semiconductor fabrication, superconductivity, and scanning probe microscopy. Jonathan is the Director of Product Solutions at Quantum Machines, where he applies his expertise to contribute to the advancement of quantum technology.